Ethics and the Indian

A Panel Discussion

Many years ago, Professor R.R. Marrett, the great Oxford social anthropologist ended his Gifford Lectures, Faith, Hope and Charity (1931-32) with a comparison of the often harsh, individualistic, highly competitive Protestant work ethic with the ethic of love often found in what we deign to call "primitive societies". He speaks of "that give-and-take which is so marked a feature of the simpler type of human society. It can almost be said to know no other law of property than 'Share and share alike'". (175f). While admitting that the ethic of charity does not make for competitive independence of effort, caring for all alike, he notes "the altogether festive delight with which the same Samoan enters into the communal job of setting up a house or hollowing out a canoe". (176) His final evaluation is that the ethic of charity must be rated higher than the ethic of ruthless industrial competition.

In Canada today, we have (amongst many others), two types of ethical attitudes which confront each other, viz that of the native peoples and that of the dominant European settlers. The Eskimo boy preferred to die rather than to eat the flesh of his aunt or his nurse. The pilot Hartwell preferred to be a cannibal and live. Whose ethic was the more noble? Who was more civilised? And by what criteria are we to judge?

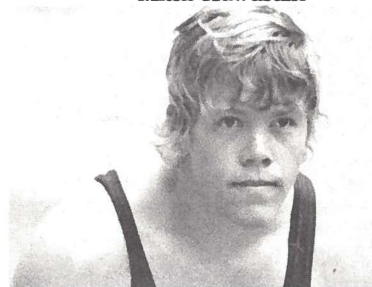

With the North American Indian, as with the Eskimo, there is a radically different ethic from that of the white man. This often, most unjustly, disadvantages the Indian. His regard for truth forbids him to plead "Not-guilty" in a court of law. His loyalty to others bids him be silent, even where silence will be mistakenly taken for consent. His communal ethic often sharply contrasts with the highly individualistic White man's ethic. This often causes individual, social and political problems. In an effort to understand this problem more than we do, the Lakehead University Philosophy Club, in co-operation with the Ontario Human Rights Commission, is sponsoring a PANEL

OCUFA Teaching Awards

Program

The Program was established in 1972 for the purpose of providing more extensive recognition to outstanding teachers in Ontario universities. Up to twenty awards in the form of citations will be made each year. Presentation of the awards will take place this year at the OCUFA Spring Conference, May 10 and 11, 1974, at Carleton University. Successful nominees will be selected by the OCUFA Committee on Teaching Awards.

Categories

"Teaching", in the context of the OCUFA Awards, need not be narrowly defined. Proficiency in teaching may extend beyond the lecture hall, the seminar room, the laboratory or the faculty member's office. Activities sometimes classified as "administrative services" - e.g. course design, curriculum, development, organization of co-operative teaching programs - and other significant forms of leadership are often important contributions to the instructional process; and those who excel in them are eligible for the OCUFA Teaching Awards.

Nominations

Are invited from individuals or such groups as local faculty associations, faculty or college councils, university committees concerned with teaching and learning, local student councils, alumni, etc. Part-time, as well as full-time, faculty members of Ontario universities are eligible for nomination.

Criteria

No standard form of submission is required. Sponsors should provide as much evidence in support of the nomination as will make it clear that outstanding work deserving of recognition has been done.

How to Proceed

Letters of nomination, and as substantial as possible supporting documentation, should be sent to: Dr. S. F. Gallagher, Chairman, OCUFA Committee on Teaching Awards, 40 Sussex Avenue, Toronto M5S 1J7. Deadline for receipt of nominations is MARCH 31, 1974.

Ten Little, Nine Little, Eight Little...

Three university presidential appointments have recently been announced. Sister Mary Albertus has been appointed president of Mount Saint Vincent University for a three-year term; Sister Mary is a professor of education at the Mount. Ian Macdonald, deputy treasurer and deputy minister of economics and intergovernmental affairs for Ontario, has been appointed president of York. And most recently, Dr. W. A. Cochrane, Dean of Medicine at Calgary was appointed president of the University of Calgary.

But those with presidential ambitions need not feel discouraged. There are seven universities still in the market for a president. They are: University of Victoria - Hugh Farquhar will resign as soon as a successor is chosen; University of British Columbia - W. H. Gage retires June 30, 1975; Simon Fraser - Kenneth Strand will complete his term and a successor is needed for next year; Brock - James Gibson is now president emeritus, new person to take office next July 1; University of Guelph - W. C. Winegard has agreed to a one year extension of his term to June 30, 1975; Queen's - J. J. Deutsch retires October 1, 1974; Ryerson - D. Mordell retires August 31, 1974.

Economics Notes

K. J. Charles of the Department of Economics attended the Annual Meeting of the Indian Economics Association held in Trichy, Tamil Nadu, India, from December 27 to 29, 1973. He presided over one of the sessions of the Conference and made a presentation on "Inflation in India". On January 8, 1974, he also gave a talk on "Recent Developments in the Theory of Economic Growth", at a Graduate Seminar of the Economics Department in the Madras University.

A small book of his entitled "Self-Knowledge" has been published by the Sivanada Yoga Vedanta Centre, Val Morin, Quebec and is available at the Lakehead University Bookstore.

F. J. Anderson's paper "Pecuniary Externalities and Referent Groups in the Operation of the Price System" appears in the January issue of the Southern Economic Journal. The article deals with the effectiveness of a competitive price system in maximizing social benefits and the rationable behind the introduction of taxes and subsidies to restrict benefits to particular groups in society, or to extend the generation of benefits beyond the confines of privately-defined groups of producers or consumers.

Dr. Chris Jecchinis, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Economics gave a talk on January 24th to the students of Business Administration at Confederation College on the "Organization, Functions and Objectives of the I. L. O."

Dr. Jecchinis has been invited also to give a talk on "Technological Change and Productivity" to the annual meeting of the Lakehead Chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants to be held at the Airline Motor Hotel in Thunder Bay on February 21, 1974.

Nursing Faculty Visit Duluth

Five faculty members of the Lakehead University School of Nursing visited the Department of Nursing at Scholastica, in Duluth, Minnesota, on January 18, 1974.

The visit, arranged under the consortium, Lake Superior Association of Colleges and Universities, served to explore areas where collaboration or exchange may be mutually beneficial. Dialogue centered on audio-visual resources, faculty exchange and plans for advanced nursing programs.

The visit was considered extremely productive for both faculties. A very warm reception was extended to visitors from Lakehead University by the Scholastica group.

Graduate Studies Enquiry

The Canada Council recently announced its decision to set up an independent Commission to enquire into the state of Canadian graduate studies in the humanities and social sciences. The Commission will be headed by Dr. Dennis Healy, Principal and Vice-Chancellor of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Quebec. Other commissioners will be appointed shortly.

The Commission, to be based in Lennoxville, is expected to begin its work in late spring. Its terms of reference will be defined by the Canada Council in consultation with the commissioners, and will be announced later. The Commission will hold public hearings across the country, and its findings will be published by the Council.

According to Andre Fortier, Director of the Canada Council, one of the many factors prompting this enquiry is the increasing uncertainty as to the purposes, effectiveness and general orientation of graduate studies in the light of present-day needs and conditions. He also referred to the changing attitudes of students towards advanced university education as exemplified in Canada by fluctuations in enrolments at the doctoral level over the past three years. He pointed out that the Council has a direct interest in the Commission's work, since a large part of its budget for the humanities and social sciences is devoted to assisting graduate students.

This collection is lent by the Territorial and Social Development Branch, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa.

Music-For-The-People

This year the Thunder Bay Symphony Orchestra Association is more than ever conscious of its educational and cultural role to the community it serves. A very wide range of services is now offered, including the following:

1. Symphony concerts
2. Chamber Music concerts
3. Recitals
4. Television performances
5. Professional music teachers for individual instrumental instruction.
6. Opportunities for young musicians to play in small ensembles and in a Youth Symphony Orchestra.
7. Instructors for the Lakehead District Catholic School Board and Lakehead University.
8. Special events such as concerts for anniversaries and in public libraries; co-operation with other local associations in operatic and musical comedy production; promotion of appearances in Thunder Bay by national music and dance companies.
9. Special services for the underprivileged (aged, infirm, etc.)

In Mr. Manuel Suarez the Association has an accomplished professional conductor and violinist resident in the community as music director. He is assisted by a team of six professional musicians (the orchestra having been augmented this year by the appointment of Marianne Still, Oboe; and Evan Verchomin, Viola). In addition to two main series of orchestral and chamber concerts, the Association is being increasingly called upon to provide music for special events and to extend its instructional services. The music school is the only one in Canada attached to a Symphony Orchestra and now has 61 students in addition to students taught through Lakehead University where the groundwork is being laid for a degree programme in instrumental performance.

The 45-member Symphony Orchestra has its own full range of rehearsals and concerts and last year conducted an exchange programme with Winnipeg. The Association provides scholarships for young people to continue their musical studies.

"Music-for-the-people" campaign.

These services cannot be provided without assistance from the community. In appealing for funds this year the Association has decided to emphasize its commitment to serve the community as a whole but especially the underprivileged, the aged, the infirm and the rising generation. When sending contributions to the work of the Association you are invited to specify the person or institution to which tickets should be sent on your behalf. A goodwill message may be included. Ticket vouchers valid for any public concert sponsored by the Association between 16th February and 31st August will be mailed in your name with a greetings card listing the numerous concerts at which they may be used.

MSC NOTICE

Faculty and Staff

The Media Services Centre would like to solicit your co-operation in the placing of Equipment Requisitions. Due to an increased demand for AV/TV services, it has become necessary to strengthen our plea, for AT LEAST 24 Hours Notice on requisitions for Equipment and Services and four weeks notice for Film Bookings.

It would also be greatly appreciated if Faculty would not move equipment placed in classrooms by the Media Services Centre. Based on past performance, when equipment is moved from a designated classroom, the Faculty member who originally booked said equipment attempts to replace it with equipment appropriated from another room: cause and effect: result - chaos.

Should you have any questions regarding the above, please do not hesitate to contact me at extension 471.
