"Canada Needs a Reality Check"

-- The Hon. Nellie Cournoyea, Premier of the Northwest Territories,
May 28, 1994

Call it synchronicity or just plain coincidence. But both honorary degree recipients used the image of a map in their Convocation Address -- and both had a lot to say about the value of different perspectives.

"As you know, the Northwest Territories spreads across the top of Canada and touches two oceans and every province except Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia," said the Hon. Nellie Cournoyea. "Sometimes I think the view of Canada looking down from that part of the world is quite different than from its populated corridors huddled along the 49th parallel."

In a straightforward plea for national unity and a new national vision, the Premier of the Northwest Territories called upon Canadians to eliminate self-made political and social tensions in order to find workable solutions.

"All of us know that this country was brought together by shared enterprise, public and private, East and West," said Ms Cournoyea. "It needs to be brought together again."

Toward the end of her address, the Premier departed from the prepared text and spoke about her Norwegian father who settled in the Coppermine area in 1927, her Inuit mother who bore 13 children, and of the struggles her family faced. She also paid tribute to her mentor Agnes Summer who encouraged Ms Cournoyea to dedicate her life to her people.

"We cannot map the complex reality of this world from one point of view."

-- Dr. Ursula Franklin

Dr. Ursula Franklin, a widely respected educator who has received honorary degrees from 13 other Canadian Universities, also used the image of the map-maker to get her point across.

"We cannot map the complex reality of this world from one point of view," she said to the graduating class.

"Many of the problems that you will have to deal with have come about by the application of knowledge without adequate understanding. It is our understanding that has to constantly try to keep pace with the increases in knowledge. Not only do we need deeper and more understanding, we also need more as well as different knowledge...."

Dr. Franklin concluded by saying, "We need each other desperately, not in spite of our different points of view, but because we have different points of view."

He and his wife Devon chat with Mrs. Braun (right) at the Convocation Eve Celebration. Mrs. Braun's husband, Dr. Harold Braun, was an original member of the faculty of the Lakehead Technical Institute and with Bill Tamblyn wrote the book, "A Northern Vision, The Development of Lakehead University".

In recognition of Evelyn Halliday's leadership gift to the Share Our Northern Vision campaign, the University officially named the residence portion of Lakehead's newly acquired Avila Centre, Halliday Hall. Evelyn was thanked by many people from the University community on Saturday including one of its distinguished graduates -- MPP Lyn McLeod.

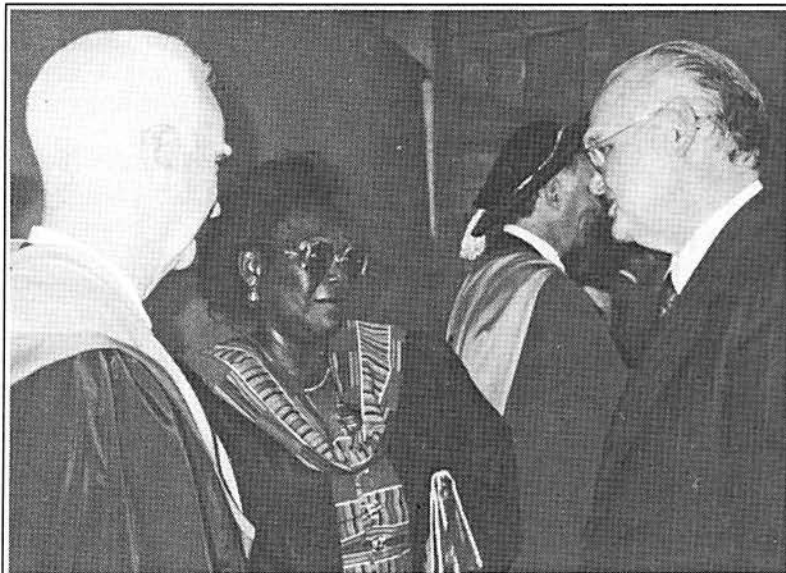

Dr. William Tamblin, the first president of Lakehead University, was on hand to see his son Ian accept an Honorary Doctor of Laws. Ian Tamblin is a graduate of Trent University and is known throughout Canada for his new age recordings incorporating wilderness sounds.

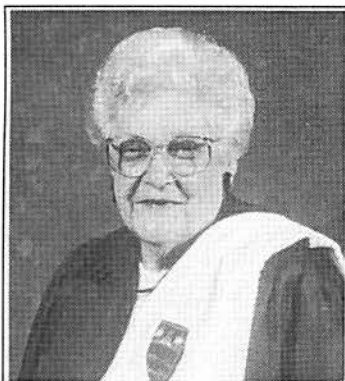

Christine Fisher, who served as Vice-President, Student Issues in 1992-93, received the Presidents' Award given to students who have earned the gratitude of the University. She also received the Poulin Award for outstanding citizenship.

LU PULP AND PAPER RESEARCHERS DO WELL

It has recently been announced that five Lakehead University faculty researchers have been awarded a total of $825,000 over four years as part of Phase 2 of the Mechanical Pulp Network Centres of Excellence Program funded by the Government of Canada and co-ordinated by PAPRICAN (Mechanical and Chemimechanical Wood-Pulps Network). Lakehead University has played a significant role in this program since its inception and the support of these initiatives is a good sign of future support in an area vital to the regional economy. The five researchers are: Dr. Neil Weir, Professor of Chemistry; Dr. David Holah, Professor of Chemistry; Dr. Ted Garver, Assistant Professor of Chemistry/Centre for Northern Studies; and Dr. Krishnamoorthy Natarajan, Associate Professor of Electrical Engineering.

CANCOPY

We hope to sign a formal contract with CANCOPY by August 1, 1994, which will cover the copyright charges associated with copying journal articles, chapters in texts, etc. Our contract will be based on a model contract of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada (AUCC) and should be very user friendly to faculty and graduate students. A blanket fee of approximately $2.50 per full-time equivalent student will cover usage by the student body. Our Print Shop and Bookstore will have to pass on specific page fees for copied materials that are sold on campus. If you have any questions about this please contact Mr. Fred Poulter.

SANDY LAKE GRADUATION

On June 10th I participated in the graduation ceremonies of the Native Teacher Education Program (NTEP) in Sandy Lake, Ontario, a Native community about 500 km northwest of Thunder Bay. This was a well-attended community event and feast which marked the completion of our first community-based initiative. Politicians and senior representatives in attendance noted the extra effort that Lakehead University had taken to make this community initiative a success. All of those who contributed to the initiative should be pleased with the results.

KEY PORTER'S REAL GUIDE TO CANADIAN UNIVERSITIES

The latest "Guide" is out (following Linda Frum's Guide to Canadian Universities published by Key Porter Books in 1987) and Lakehead University fares well in the text. This initiative saw students from across Canada being contracted to write chapters on their institutions. The team of Rick Cox (LUSU Vice-President, Finance) and Doug Steary (former editor of the Argus) completed the chapter on Lakehead University. It is a combination of fact, perception and folklore and, on balance, presents a positive perspective.

VICE-PRESIDENT (ADMINISTRATION)

As you may know, Mr. Fred Poulter, Vice-President (Administration), was scheduled to retire at the end of this year. His appointment is being extended until June 30, 1995, in a manner analogous to faculty whose birthdays occur in the final six months of the calendar year. With the various initiatives that Lakehead University has underway at the present time and with the major external government review of the University system that will occur over the next few months, the senior officers of the Board of Governors and I felt that the continuity provided by the incumbent in this position was important

UNIVERSITY INPUT

At the present time, there are several Search Committees underway for academic Deans as well as for the position of Dean of Graduate Studies and Research. I would encourage all members of the University community -- faculty, staff, students -- to respond to the various calls for input to the Committees.

CONGRATULATIONS GERALDINE WHITE

Congratulations are in order for Geraldine White who was successful in the search for the position of Director of Student Services.

Geraldine has a MSc (Mathematics) from Lakehead University and has served as Coordinator of the Learning Assistance Centre since its inception in 1988.

BEST WISHES FOR A SPEEDY RECOVERY

Best wishes for a speedy recovery go out to Reverend Dr. Roy Wilson, husband of Chancellor Lois Wilson, who fell ill during a recent vacation to Kenora.

JUNE 30TH DEADLINE

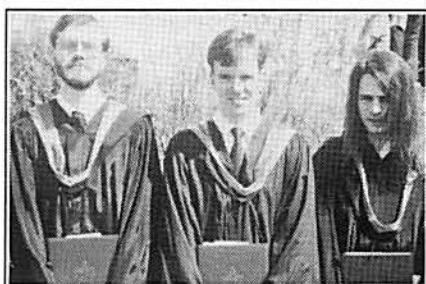

Linda Penner, Anti-Racism Project Coordinator, has asked me to remind all faculty to complete and return the questionnaire on racial issues on campus that was circulated in May. If you have already done so, thank you.

PENNIES GALORE

As this issue goes to press, organizers of the Thunder Bay Children's Festival are counting the many thousands of pennies collected on campus in a friendly competition set up between Confederation College and Lakehead University this spring. Lakehead has been declared the winner by 45 pounds! Congratulations and thanks to all who participated in this worthwhile project.

First ever graduating class from the Co-operative Education Program: Honours Bachelor of Science - Computer Science Co-operative Education graduates include (left to right) John Erzetic, Sandy Gordon, and Tony Gallo. John Erzetic is launching his career with Thunder Bay Telephone, Sandy Gordon is planning to further his studies in a Masters of Science - Computer Science program, and Tony Gallo has recently accepted employment with Fleming Systems Corporation.

Co-operative Education is a process of learning often referred to as "Experiential Learning". As a formal part of the curriculum, it integrates the student's academic study with work experience in cooperating employer organizations.

Each of the Computer Science Co-op Education Graduates completed a total of 20 months paid work experience with a variety of cooperating employer partners.

Next year there will be more Computer Science Co-op Education Graduates, as well as the first (ever in Canada) degree class of Forestry Co-op Education Graduates.

For more information contact John DeGiacomo, Co-op Coordinator at (807) 343-8264.

SAFETY NOTE: Over the last month, we have had two occurrences involving the use of commercial wax stripper -- one a "near miss" incident which did not result in an injury, and one which resulted in an injury requiring medical aid. The occurrences have underlined the importance of understanding the products in use in the workplace, and of following safe handling and usage guidelines.

The same level of understanding is required in the home where the same or similar products are in use. In both circumstances, find out as much about the product as you can before using it: read the Material Safety Data Sheet; read the label; follow manufacturer's directions. And, in case of an emergency: know where you can find a first aid kit, an eyewash station, or an emergency shower; know how to obtain emergency assistance.

THIS YEAR IN REVIEW

Women's Studies Work-in-Progress Series

The past year saw women on campus sharing their work-in-progress during a regular lunchtime speaker series. It began in October with Dr. Helen Smith (History) speaking on "Gender Construction in Historical Perspective". This was followed in November by Dr. Juanita Epp (Education) whose talk was entitled "When Women Want to Be Principals" and in December by Marymay Downing (Women's Studies) speaking on "Aphrodite Necrophilia: A Feminist Analysis of Violent Pornography".

In January Dr. Jeanette Lynes (English) gave a talk entitled "Move Over Margaret Atwood: Some New Canadian Women Writers" followed by Lisa Richardson (English) on "Livy Tanaquil and Bachofen: Some Thoughts on Women in Livy". Ann Clarke (Visual Arts) was featured in February giving "A Painter's Reflection on Approaching Fifty". Later that month Dr. Hope Fennell (Education) spoke on "Women in Leadership" followed by Ruby Slipperjack-Farrell (Education) who spoke about "The Effects of Colonization on the Art and Craft of Ojibwa Women in Ontario". Dr. Pat Jasen (History) concluded the series with her talk entitled "The Spermatic journey? Women, Men and the Victorian Holiday."

REQUEST FOR COMMENTS

Resource Allocation Bulletin #2 available in e-mail

The Ontario Council on Universities Affairs has issued its second Resource Allocation Bulletin. In it Council asks for information and advice from members of the University community as it develops the summer discussion paper. A number of questions are posed in relation to the objectives for the funding system, options for change to the funding system, and issues Council has raised with organization external to the university community.

It can be received by e-mail at rar@mcu.gov.on.ca.

Pamela Christie (BA'90, MA'94) didn't make it to this year's Convocation but was delighted to pose with her proud parents Dave Christie, Assistant Director, Finance, and Diane Christie, a nurse in Health Services. Pamela has been accepted into the PhD program in Public Policy at Carleton University.

Partners from Ghana

In May Lakehead University welcomed Ghanaian partners in the Ghana Environmental Management Literacy Project. Directors and faculty members from the Institute of Renewable Natural Resources, University of Science and Technology, Kumasi, and the Institute of Adult Education, University of Ghana, Legon, are engaged in a range of project activities with both LU and Confederation College the fourth institution in the CIDA-funded five-year project.

ABORIGINAL EDUCATION AND TRAINING

Lakehead and Confederation receive $848,000 from the Province of Ontario

Lakehead University and Confederation College will receive $848,000 from the province to develop programs and services for Aboriginal people. The announcement was made on May 20, 1994 by Shelley Wark-Martyn, MPP for Port Arthur on behalf of Education and Training Minister Dave Cooke.

The money for the projects, which comes from the province's Aboriginal Education and Training Strategy, will help both institutions develop new programs and maintain programs previously approved under the strategy.

Lakehead University and Confederation College are among 22 post-secondary institutions receiving $5.8 million in funding through the Aboriginal Education and Training Strategy this year.

Lakehead University will receive $490,100 to support seven on-going projects and two new initiatives. Lakehead will use a portion of the new money to develop a new textbook and course of study with respect to the Severn Ojibway language a Northwestern Ontario dialect. It will also use the funding to provide administrative assistance to Dennis McPherson, Chair of the Department of Indigenous Learning, relating to the academic and access programs and support services.

"I'm pleased to learn of the continued support for Aboriginal support services and program development provided through the Aboriginal Education and Training Strategy," said John Whitfield, Vice President, Academics. "Support for LU's approximately 450 Aboriginal students through the Elder/Tutor programs and counselling services is essential to their well-being and success within the University. Also the support for Native Studies will support the development of an Honours program in Indigenous Learning."

CHANGES TO APPLICATIONS DEADLINES

Travel and Conference Grants

Competitions for funding under SSHRC's Aid to Occasional Scholarly Conferences in Canada and Travel Grants for International Representation programs will no longer be held three times a year. Beginning next year (1995), applications to both programs will be accepted only twice a year. The new annual Submission deadlines will be March 1st and November 1st each year starting in 1995.

CROSS-CULTURAL PARTNERSHIPS

in Training Aboriginal Social Workers

Dr. Anne Alexander

Prof David Challen

Prof Dennis McPherson

Three professors from Lakehead University are working with the Rainy Lake Ojibway Educational Authority (RLOEA) to research aspects of the development of an educational program for the training of Aboriginal social workers.

In responding to generally felt needs, The Rainy Lake Ojibway Educational Authority conducted a needs assessment to identify specific areas for educational programs. RLOEA found that a major priority existed for the training of social workers. The identification of this training need was understandable, given the demographics, the self government goals of First Nations, and the social and economic development objectives of individuals and their communities.

The Social Work Department and the RLOEA have been exploring the delivery of an Honours Bachelor of Social Work program. Two prerequisites have been identified: that the program provide a first-class, marketable degree enabling graduates to be employed anywhere, and that the program delivery be sensitive to the culture of First Nations communities, respectful of Aboriginal traditions and relevant to their experience.

Research being carried out by Dr. Anne Alexander, Prof. David Challen, Prof. Dennis McPherson, and other members of the Department of Social Work will address the form and content of a social work educational program that would meet the needs of Aboriginal students.

The focus of this research centres on several interrelated themes and experiences including: exploration of the cross-cultural variables involved in the helping approaches of Aboriginal belief systems along with the elements of formal social work practice; defining culturally specific and culturally relevant social work practice in response to the indigenous cultures; experience in a collaborative and interdisciplinary approach to meet the educational, employment and developmental goals of the RLOEA communities; and understanding the impact and result of long-standing, social welfare policies on Aboriginal people and First Nations communities.

Our Mistake

We apologize to Mike Kopot, President of the LU Mature Students Association, for misspelling his name in the April'94 issue of the Agora. The Association was in the news for creating two new annual bursaries in the amount of $250.

NEW ACADEMIC OFFERING

Interdisciplinary Minor Program in Gerontology

Eight departments at Lakehead University have joined together to provide a new academic offering which, although not listed in the 1994-95 University calendar, will be available beginning in the fall of 1994.

The program is an Interdisciplinary Minor Program in Gerontology and its goals are to provide students with the multi-disciplinary knowledge and perspective necessary to understand the aging process and older adults, and to analyze gerontology issues at individual and societal levels.

This Introduction provides some background on the program:

"Changes in the Canadian demographic profile, specifically the aging of the Canadian population, have impacted on all aspects of Canada's political, economic and social environment. Business, industry and health and social care professions have increasingly recognized older persons as an important target for their service. To prepare themselves for these changes, students have been increasingly enrolling in LU's existing aging courses, and also requesting additional educational preparation in topics related to aging. A competitive employment environment has also created a demand for concentrated academic preparation in gerontology at the university level including the ability to work in a multi-disciplinary environment."

The Program Committee is comprised of A. Chen (Sociology), T. King (Nursing), J. Taylor (Physical Education and Athletics), B. O'Connor (Psychology), B.K. Kent (Philosophy), G. Ozburn (Biology), M.L. Kelley (Social Work), T. Hill (Gerontology Study Group) and H. Akervall (School of Outdoor Recreation, Parks and Tourism).

Students interested in the program are asked to contact Mary Lou Kelley, Director, Northern Educational Centre for Aging and Health (807) 343-2126.

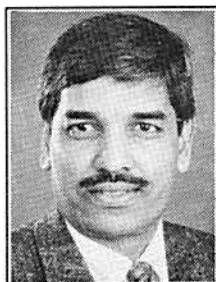

SCHOLARS WITH LOCAL LINKS

Elinor Barr, historical researcher, writer and graduate of Lakehead University, notes that several entries in the new volume have been written by scholars with local links. They include Migisi, an Ojibwa chief after whom the Dokis Indian Reserve on the French River is named written by Dr. James T. Angus, Professor Emeritus of History; Simon James Dawson, surveyor, engineer, and politician by Dr. Elizabeth Arthur, Professor Emeritus of Canadian History; Father Richard Baxter, Roman Catholic priest and Jesuit by Elinor Barr, John Mather, businessman and timber manager in the Ottawa and Lake of the Woods region by Jamie Benidickson, Associate Professor of Law, University of Ottawa; Joseph Goodwin King, businessman and politician, who pioneered the treatment of wheat in Canada and became the first private operator of a western terminal elevator and George Thomas Marks, businessman, office holder and politician, mayor of Port Arthur from 1893-99 both by Brent Scollie, policy and planning manager, Department of Energy Mines and Resources, Ottawa; Thomas Macfarlane, mining engineer, chemist, and civil servant, who discovered Canada's first major silver deposit on a tiny rock in Lake Superior which he named Silver Islet by Victor C. Smith, Assistant Professor of History, Lakehead University; Zhauwuno-geezhigo-gaubow, Ojibway shaman and headman of the Sucker people at Sandy Lake, who was arrested for murder by the Royal North-west Mounted Police in the ritual killing of a windigo by James Richard Stevens, Counsellor at Confederation College, writer, editor and folklorist.

THE LAKE SUPERIOR ECOSYSTEM MANAGEMENT COOPERATIVE

Dr. Azim Mallik of the Biology Department, who has been representing Lakehead University on the Executive Committee of the Lake Superior Ecosystem Cooperative, was elected Vice-Chair of the organization in May, 1994. The Lake Superior Ecosystem Cooperative has representatives from 17 U.S. organizations such as the U.S. Forest Service, Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of Agriculture, Environmental Protection Agency, Soil Conservation Service, Wisconsin and Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Universities of Wisconsin and Minnesota, and Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Commission, Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Lakehead University is the only Canadian organization participating in the Cooperative since joining in May, 1992. Membership in the organization helps to facilitate collaborative research projects in the area of sustainable ecosystem management in the Lake Superior region. Lakehead University, through the Office of Research and Graduate Studies, will host the next meeting on September 21, 1994. Faculty who are interested in meeting with the representatives of any of these organizations about potential research projects should contact A. Mallik at 343-8927 or Lynn Wilson at 343-8283.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Avila Centre named in honor of a 16th-Century Carmelite

Have you ever wondered where the name "Avila" comes from? According to an article published in a 1968 issue of The Canadian Register, the original owners of the building -- the Sisters of St. Joseph -- named the Avila Centre in honor of St. Teresa of Avila. St. Teresa was born in Avila, Spain, and entered the Carmelite Order in 1535. She wrote extensively on spiritual and mystical subjects and greatly influenced religious men and women of her time. St. Teresa was canonized in 1622 and in 1970 she was proclaimed the first woman doctor of the Church.

The Sisters of St. Joseph built the Avila Centre in 1967 to serve as a focal point for Christian activity in the area and as a residence. The Chapel, officially opened with an ecumenical dedication and blessing ceremony in 1968, was intended to be shared with community groups including Roman Catholic Teachers, the Council of Clergy, and University students. Throughout the 1970s and 1980s Avila served as a Centre of Spiritual Renewal -- a pastoral centre catering to the spiritual needs of Sisters, Priests and the laity. In 1993 the Sisters of St. Joseph sold the building to Lakehead University for use as a women's residence, a base for the Alumni Association, offices for the Department of External Relations, and facilities for the Lakehead University Community Music School.

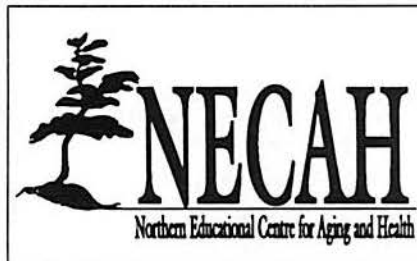

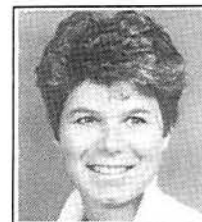

A STUDENT, A GRADUATE AND A PROFESSOR nominated for the title "Woman of the Year"

All of the finalists for the 1994 Thunder Bay Business Women's Network's "Woman of the Year" Award have a connection with Lakehead University, and of the three women -- a student, a graduate and a professor -- it was the student who won! Dawn Powell (centre), owner of Dawn M. Powell Appraisals, Inc., is enrolled as a part-time student majoring in Political Studies. She is currently President-Elect of the Thunder Bay Chamber of Commerce and next year will become the second woman president in the Chamber's 109-year history. The other finalists were Margaret Forbes (right), Assistant Professor in the School of Business Administration, and Linda Ashby (left), owner of the Public Relations and Business Communications company, Ashby & Co. Both Marg and Linda are graduates of Lakehead University. The "Woman of the Year" Award is one of three awards given annually as part of the Network's Balanced Life Awards program.

WOMEN AND SPORT

The first international conference on women and sport, which brought together policy and decision makers in sport at both national and international levels, took place in Brighton, U.K., May 5-8, 1994. The 280 delegates from 82 countries represented governmental and non-governmental organizations, national Olympic committees, international and national sport federations, and educational and research institutions. The purpose of the conference was to increase the involvement of women in sport at all levels and in all functions and roles through the establishment and development of an International Women in Sport Strategy. Canada was well represented and is seen as a world leader in women's sport. Carol Ann Letheren, The President of the Canadian Olympic Association and member of The International Olympic Committee was one of the keynote speakers. Dr. Jane Crossman, Professor of Physical Education, presented her research on the representation of women athletes by the Canadian press and led a work group concerning strategies to enhance participation in sport for girls and women.

PALLIATIVE CARE INSTITUTE

October 30 - November 4

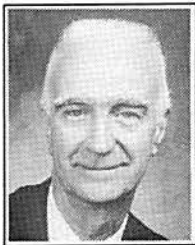

The Northern Educational Centre for Aging and Health (NECAH) is currently developing a regional interdisciplinary program in palliative care to be called "The Palliative Care Institute". It will be offered at the Airline Hotel in Thunder Bay from October 30 to November 4, 1994 and about 100 registrants are expected to attend.

According to NECAH Director Mary Lou Kelley, the program is being developed using regional, provincial and nationally recognized experts and the emphasis will be on participation. The Institute's format will include plenary sessions and small group discussions to examine local case studies; workshops on special topics, field trips and an examination of special issues including AIDS and cultural aspects of palliative care.

The majority of registrants will be delegates chosen by agencies and sponsored by the Ministry of Health. However, there will be an opportunity for participants to register by paying tuition. For further information contact the NECAH office at (807) 343-2126 or Fax (807) 343-2104.

FOUR PROFESSORS AWARDED THE TITLE "EMERITUS" AT CONVOCATION

Of the 10 retirees honored during the Employee Service Recognition Reception, four were awarded the title Professor Emeritus at Convocation. The following excerpts are taken from the tributes given by Dr. Rosehart at the Employee Reception.

John Naysmith
Associate Professor and Director
School of Forestry

"John Naysmith came to Lakehead in January 1988 and has played a major role in a number of developments at the School of Forestry including the start-up and successful implementation of the Ontario advanced Forestry program, a major grant from the Northern Ontario Heritage fund for LU-CARIS, the Ghana Environmental Management Literacy project, and the Nepal resource conservation and community action project. He has also represented the University off campus on a number of projects including being a Director of the Ontario Forestry Association, and helping to develop a framework for Aboriginal Forestry Education. He well deserves the trekking he and his wife Toie plan to do in the Swiss and Austrian alps...."

Jack Kelleher
Associate Professor
School of Education

"Jack Kelleher came to the School of Education in 1971 and worked mostly in preparing teachers of Chemistry and Physics. He gradually directed more of his time into measurement and evaluation. He provided much of the instruction in using computers in the classroom. Jack also taught research methods courses in the graduate program and provided general support for faculty and graduate students using computers. Plans for the future in retirement include doing the things he has wanted to do which he is still able to do them...."

Grant Stephenson
Associate Professor
School of Education

"Grant came to the School of Education in 1972 from Southern Ontario where he had taught in elementary and secondary schools east of and in Toronto. His work at the faculty included preparing students for teaching History. He has also regularly taught courses in the pre-service and continuing teacher education programs in the use of educational media and technology in the classroom. Grant retires from LU after 40 years in the field of education...."

Bill Eames
Professor
Department of Mathematical Sciences

Bill joined LU in 1966 as an Associate Professor and was promoted to the rank of Professor in 1978. Bill has taught Math 1160 (Calculus for the Masses) since joining Lakehead University. In so doing, he has earned the respect, appreciation, and sometimes, animosity of myriads of students ... and one group of students, based on their 1160 experience, launched a rock band called "The Derivatives". Bill served as Department Chair for several terms and served on nearly every major University and Senate committee including perennial election to the Promotion Tenure, Renewal Committee. His dedicated service to the university is greatly appreciated...."

Lakehead University Congratulates Rebecca Johnson winner of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce's Burnie Gillespie Memorial Award

A member of Lakehead University's Board of Governors -- Rebecca Johnson -- has recently been awarded the Burnie Gillespie Memorial Award by the Ontario Chamber of Commerce in recognition of demonstrated excellence in Chamber management and community leadership in the volunteer sector.

Rebecca Johnson is the Executive Director of the Thunder Bay Chamber of Commerce responsible for the management and administration of the 1500-member association.

She is currently a Director (and in 1981 and 1990 was the Campaign Chair) for the United Way; Vice-Chair of the CKPR-TV Advisory Committee; a member of the Selection Committee to the Northwestern Ontario Sports Hall of Fame; a member of the Police Youth Corporation Board of Directors; a member of the Thunder Bay Business Women's Network where she won the 1991 "Woman of the Year Balanced Life Award"; and a member of the Thunder Bay Press Club.

In 1992 Rebecca Johnson was awarded an Achievement Award by the City of Thunder Bay in recognition of her distinguished contribution to the community.

REORGANIZATION

Joan Seeley, Circulation/Interlibrary Loans Librarian has taken up new duties in the Collections Development Department at The Chancellor Paterson Library. These new duties replace her Circulation responsibilities. Frank Sebesta, Supervisor of Administrative Services, has assumed the position of Circulation Supervisor in addition to his present responsibilities. We wish Joan and Frank success in their new positions.

LOOKING FOR HELP ON THE INTERNET?

The following is a selected list of titles which are useful for the beginning Internet user who is looking for a place to start as well as for the advanced Internet user who wants to locate sources of information on the Internet.

For assistance with any of these titles, please ask at the Information Desk on the Main Floor of The Chancellor Paterson Library.

Carroll, Jim and Rick Broadhead. Canadian Internet Handbook. Ontario: Prentice-Hall Canada Inc., 1994. (Ready REF. TK 5105.875 I57C37 1994). This handbook is an excellent source of information for Internet users in Canada. Included are Canadian directories of gopher servers and Campus Wide Information Systems, Canadian USENET Newsgroups, and Canadian Internet-Accessible Online Catalogues in Canada. (Highly recommended).

Marine, April, Kirkpatrick, Susan, Neou, Vivian and Carol Ward. Internet: Getting Started. New Jersey: Prentice-Hall, 1994. (REF. TK 5105.875 I57I53 1994). This is another very good book for the beginning Internet user. It provides information about the development of the Internet in the United States and networks in other countries.

Mailing lists are one of the most important resources on the Internet, linking people from all over the world who are interested in a specific field of study or general information topic. Mailing lists are completely interactive and provide an excellent source for information sharing. The next two titles provide information about locating and subscribing to these lists and discussion groups:

Hardie, Edward T.L. and Vivian Neou. Internet: Mailing Lists. New Jersey: Prentice-Hall, 1993. (REF. TK 5105.875 I57I56 1993).

Strangelove, Michael and Diane Kovacs. Directory of Electronic Journals, Newsletters and Academic Discussion Lists. (3rd edition). Washington, D.C.: Association of Research Libraries, 1993. (REF. Z 286 E43D57 1993).

New Internet titles received in the Library will be announced in this column. You may also enquire at the Information Desk on the Main Floor of The Chancellor Paterson Library.
